WEBINAR OVERVIEW

Occupational health and safety legislation outlines the respective roles and responsibilities for employers and workers to ensure a safe workplace. It is through an understanding of these roles and responsibilities that employers and workers participate in the identification, evaluation and control of workplace hazards to lower the risk of injury in the workplace.

This workshop will explore the various legislative roles and responsibilities of employers, employees, managers, supervisors, OH&S Committee members, WH&S Representatives and Designates, contractors, as well as visitors. Participants will receive information on the duties of workplace parties in injury prevention, and discuss practical ways to implement these duties fully in the workplace.

During this webinar we will discuss the following:

- Define the legislative roles and responsibilities of workplace parties;
- Explore the differences between individual roles and collective responsibility;
- Discuss the Internal Responsibility System in the workplace; and
- The role of workplace parties in enhancing a safety culture in the workplace.
